How to read the prices

MINIMUM ORDER (MOQ)
25 pieces per pattern per colour

SAMPLE CHARGES
₹3,000 flat per sample

Indicative pricing. Prices in this catalogue are approximate wholesale ranges for planning and comparison. They are ex-factory Mumbai, per piece, for plain stock colours from the MOQ of 25 pieces per pattern per colour, excluding GST, freight, duties and optional branding. Your final price is confirmed in a written quotation (within one business day) once fabric, GSM, size, colours, quantity and packaging are fixed.

Volume pricing

ORDER PER STYLE	PRICE LEVEL
25 (MOQ) – 999 pcs	List range shown in tables
1,000 – 2,999 pcs	approx. 5 – 7% below list
3,000 – 9,999 pcs	approx. 9 – 11% below list (shown as "3,000+")
10,000+ pcs	approx. 12 – 15% below list, quoted per programme

Reading the GSM tables

- GSM (grams per square metre) is fabric weight. Higher GSM means more opacity, a heavier drape and a higher price.
- The row marked standard is the weight we stock and recommend for that style.
- Silk is graded in momme (mm). 1 momme ≈ 4.3 GSM, so 19 mm ≈ 82 GSM.
- Abaya prices cover sizes 52 – 58. Sizes 60 – 62 add about ₹40 – ₹80 per piece. Two- and three-piece sets are priced per complete set.
- USD figures are converted at ₹88 = US$1 and follow the exchange rate on the quotation date.

Branding & one-time costs

Woven brand label	₹2 – ₹5 / pc
Printed care / size label	₹1 – ₹3 / pc
Printed hang tag with string	₹3 – ₹8 / pc
Individual poly bag with logo	₹2 – ₹4 / pc
Branded retail card / sleeve (hijabs)	₹8 – ₹15 / pc
Rigid gift box (luxury / bridal)	₹60 – ₹150 / pc
Custom Pantone lab-dip	₹1,500 – ₹3,000 per colour (one-time)
Print strike-off	₹2,500 – ₹5,000 per design (one-time)
Sample charges (any style)	₹3,000 flat per sample

Shipping terms

- EXW, FOB, CIF and DDP supported. Most accounts buy FOB Mumbai (Nhava Sheva / JNPT).
- Air freight, sea freight (FCL / LCL) or express courier.
- Exports are zero-rated for GST. Domestic orders are billed with GST at the prevailing apparel slab.
- Commercial invoice, packing list and certificate of origin are prepared for every shipment.

Abaya fabric & GSM guide

Zoom

120 – 140 GSM

Zoom is a lightweight, breathable alternative to Nida, better suited to warmer climates and everyday wear where a lighter hand-feel matters more than structure. It takes color well too, which is part of why it's such a common choice for value-tier abaya and khimar programs.

Lightweight · Breathable · Cost-efficient · Wide color range

Nida

150 – 185 GSM

Nida is the workhorse of our abaya program — a matte, medium-weight polyester weave with enough body to hold its structure without turning stiff. It resists creasing through transit and daily wear, which is exactly why it's our default base fabric for volume wholesale orders.

Matte finish · Wrinkle-resistant · Opaque at standard weight · Holds structured seams

Korean Nida

160 – 210 GSM

Korean Nida uses a finer, more tightly spun yarn than standard Nida, which gives it a slightly higher sheen, a smoother hand-feel, and better drape recovery. We recommend it as the upgrade fabric for private label ranges positioned above entry-level pricing.

Smoother hand-feel · Improved drape · Subtle sheen · Excellent color depth

Crepe

200 – 240 GSM

Crepe is our most versatile occasion fabric, and we use it across khimars and embellished crepe abayas. The slightly textured surface diffuses light attractively, which is part of why it's a preferred base for embroidery and stonework.

Textured matte finish · Holds embellishment well · Good structure · Available satin-back

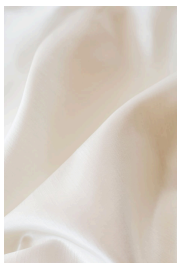

Linen-Cotton

150 – 180 GSM

Linen and linen blends show up in our warm-climate and resort-adjacent modest wear lines. We finish our blends specifically to cut down on the extreme creasing pure linen is known for, while keeping its characteristic texture and breathability intact.

Highly breathable · Textured hand-feel · Naturally cooling · Reduced-crease finish

Satin

110 – 130 GSM

High-sheen satin base for bridal and evening abayas. Fluid, photograph-ready drape that carries embellishment weight.

High sheen · Fluid drape · Bridal & evening · Holds stonework

Mulberry Silk

19 – 22 momme (≈82 – 95 GSM)

We reserve mulberry silk for our luxury tier — hand-rolled hem hijabs, premium scarves, and gift-ready ranges. It carries a natural sheen and drape that synthetic fabrics just can't fully replicate, and we inspect every roll for consistency before it gets cut.

Natural sheen · Superior drape · Temperature-regulating · Hypoallergenic

Premium Blends

Custom

When a private label partner has specific performance or hand-feel requirements, we develop custom fiber blends together with our mill network — usually combining two or three base fibers to hit a target weight, opacity, and drape that off-the-shelf fabric just can't match.

Developed to specification · Custom weight and opacity targets · Minimum development run applies

Abaya Styles

Everyday Nida abayas through to hand-embellished occasion pieces, cut and finished at our Mumbai facility to whatever private label spec you send us.

Abaya is the biggest single line running through our factory, and it's also where cut matters just as much as fabric does. An open-front Nida abaya and an embellished crepe occasion piece share almost nothing in terms of pattern block, seam allowance, or finishing standard, even though a buyer might list both under "abayas" on the same purchase order.

Our everyday abaya program is built on matte Korean Nida, a fabric with enough body to hold its shape without turning stiff. We finish it with concealed snap closures and reinforced pockets at the side seam, and this is the style our GCC and South Asian accounts come back for order after order. Above that sits our occasion tier: heavier crepe bases that can carry hand-placed stonework and embroidery without the drape distorting, produced in smaller runs starting at 25 pieces per pattern per colour, which tends to suit boutique and bridal-adjacent buyers better than a bulk-volume minimum would.

Custom embroidery placement, woven size labels, and custom snap or zip closures are all available across the range for private label orders. Size runs go from 52 to 62 as standard, and we'll do made-to-measure for occasion pieces on request.

ABAYA STYLE 01

Closed Abaya

Fully closed silhouette with a hidden zip or pull-over construction and no front opening.

Model wearing a closed-silhouette abaya with no front opening

Closed abayas are cut as one continuous piece, no front seam to close, using either a concealed back zip or a pull-over head opening depending on how heavy the fabric is. Taking away the front closure also takes away the most common failure point on an abaya, a snap or zip pull that gives out after repeated use, and that's part of why this silhouette shows the lowest return rate across our range according to distributor feedback. It's the volume style most GCC and South Asian accounts keep reordering season after season, usually run on matte Korean Nida for enough body to hold structure without turning stiff. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour, with reinforced side-seam pockets as standard.

Open Abaya

Open-front layering abaya worn over an underdress rather than closed at the front.

Model wearing an open-front abaya layered over an underdress

Open abayas are a layering piece from the start: cut with a front opening and no closure, meant to be worn over an underdress, trousers, or a coordinating set rather than sealed shut. The wider armhole and looser body give more visible movement than a closed abaya, which is part of why this silhouette tends to photograph better for social media and e-commerce than it does hanging on a rack. Most buyers pair it with a matching underdress SKU to sell as a two-piece look, without actually manufacturing it as a literal two-piece set. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

ABAYA STYLE 03

Butterfly Abaya

Wide, winged sleeve construction that opens into a dramatic silhouette when arms are raised.

Model wearing a butterfly abaya with wide, dramatic sleeve silhouette

Close-up detail of butterfly abaya sleeve seam construction

Butterfly abayas use an exaggerated dolman sleeve that joins to the body in one continuous panel, so the garment sits fairly fitted at rest and then opens into a wide, wing-like shape the moment the arms go up. It's the style buyers reach for in lookbook and runway-adjacent marketing, since the movement photographs dramatically, even though it's cut from the same fabric base as our standard abayas. The wider panel does use more fabric per unit than a fitted sleeve would, so there's a modest cost increase over our closed and everyday lines. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Kimono Abaya

Straight-cut, open-front layering abaya inspired by kimono tailoring, tied or left open.

Model wearing a kimono-style abaya with a relaxed, tied silhouette

Kimono abayas borrow their straight-line body and wide, uncurved sleeve from kimono tailoring rather than a traditional abaya block, which gives a relaxed, resort-adjacent silhouette buyers tend to stock alongside occasion pieces as a lighter layering option. It's usually finished with a self-fabric tie belt instead of a fitted seam, so one size range covers a wider variety of body shapes than our fitted styles do. This is our best-reordering layering style among warm-climate and resort-market buyers who want abaya-adjacent coverage without the full structure. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour; the Widad Kimono Abaya is a good example of this cut on a full product.

ABAYA STYLE 05

Kloosh / Umbrella Abaya

Circular-cut hem that flares from the shoulder for maximum fullness and swing.

Model wearing an umbrella-cut abaya with a full, circular flared hem

Kloosh, or umbrella-cut, abayas use a circular pattern rather than straight panels, so the hem flares evenly from the shoulder seam the way an umbrella opens, instead of gathering fullness at the waist. It uses noticeably more fabric per unit than a straight-panel abaya, which is the main reason it sits above our everyday styles, but it's also the cut GCC buyers most associate with a premium, traditional silhouette. The even flare holds its shape through walking and movement better than gathered or pleated fullness, which tends to collapse unevenly after a few washes. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Batwing Abaya

Dropped dolman sleeve for a relaxed, oversized upper body and tapered hem.

Model wearing a batwing-sleeve abaya with a relaxed, tapered silhouette

Batwing abayas drop the sleeve seam low into the body panel, similar in construction to our butterfly cut, but tapering back toward a narrower hem instead of staying wide throughout, which gives a more wearable, everyday silhouette. The dropped shoulder line is more forgiving across a wide size range than a set-in sleeve, which is why buyers targeting a broad size run tend to prefer it over more fitted options. It sits between our closed and butterfly styles on both fabric usage and price. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Coat / Blazer Style Abaya

Structured lapel and collar construction worn open, styled closer to outerwear than traditional abaya.

Model wearing a structured blazer-style abaya with a tailored lapel

Close-up of blazer-style abaya lapel and collar construction

Coat and blazer-style abayas bring a structured lapel, collar, and often a self-belt into the pattern, positioning the piece closer to modest outerwear than a traditional abaya. It's cut on a heavier fabric than our fluid styles so the lapel holds its roll without interfacing, and it's usually worn fully open over daywear rather than closed. This is the fastest-growing style in our range right now among buyers targeting younger, fashion-forward customers who want abaya-adjacent coverage that reads as a going-out layer rather than traditional dress. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Front Open Abaya

Functional button or snap-front closure the full length of the garment.

Model wearing a front-open abaya with a full-length snap closure

Front open abayas differ from our general open-silhouette style in one way: they carry a real, functional closure, a full-length row of snaps or buttons, rather than an unclosed layering front. That means the same garment can be worn fully closed, partially open, or as a layering piece, depending on what the customer wants that day. It's mainly why distributors reorder this as one SKU that covers multiple styling occasions instead of stocking separate closed and open lines. Closure hardware comes in tonal or contrast finishes for private label branding. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Two-Piece Abaya

Coordinated top and skirt set styled and sold as a single abaya SKU.

Model wearing a coordinated two-piece abaya top and skirt set

Two-piece abaya sets split the garment into a coordinating top and skirt instead of one continuous dress, which gives customers independent sizing across the bust and waist that a one-piece cut just can't offer. Buyers sell it as a single matched SKU rather than separates, with both pieces cut from the same fabric lot so the shade matches exactly. It tends to work well for private label ranges targeting fit-conscious customers who've specifically asked for adjustable proportions. Sold as coordinated sets from 25 sets per pattern per colour.

Three-Piece Abaya

Top, skirt, and matching inner slip or hijab set sold as one coordinated SKU.

Model wearing a matching three-piece abaya, skirt, and hijab set

Three-piece abaya sets add a matching inner slip or coordinating hijab to the two-piece top-and-skirt format, so distributors get a complete, ready-to-wear outfit they can merchandise as one gift-ready SKU instead of assembling separates at retail. This format sells strongest through our Eid and occasion-adjacent wholesale accounts, where a complete matched set justifies a higher basket value than separates would. All three pieces are cut and dyed from the same fabric lot, so the shades stay consistent. Sold as coordinated sets from 25 sets per pattern per colour.

Embroidered Abaya

Hand or machine-placed embroidery on a heavier crepe base for occasion positioning.

Model wearing an embroidered abaya with hand-placed stonework detail

Close-up of hand-placed embroidery and stonework on abaya fabric

Embroidered abayas run on heavier crepe bases specifically because that weight can hold hand-placed stonework and thread embroidery without the drape distorting around the stitched area, which is the defect buyers most often report from cheaper embroidered competitors. Placement, thread color, and motif density are all fully customizable if you're building a signature occasion line, and we support small-batch runs for boutique and bridal-adjacent accounts. This is our highest-margin, lowest-competition abaya tier, produced in small-batch runs from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Everyday Abaya

No-fuss daily-wear abaya on matte Nida, built for reorder volume over occasion styling.

Model wearing an everyday matte Nida abaya in a clean, simple silhouette

Close-up of everyday abaya fabric and reinforced pocket seam

Everyday abayas strip the category back to what daily-wear customers actually reorder: matte Korean Nida with enough body to hold a clean line, concealed closures that won't snag on a handbag strap, and reinforced side-seam pockets built to survive repeated use. There's no embellishment or dramatic silhouette here, and that's deliberate. This is the SKU distributors reorder every season without needing a design refresh, which makes it the highest-volume, most predictable line in our abaya range, and usually the natural first order for a new private label account. Offered from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Korean Nida fabric sheen close-up

Salma takes the Layla base pattern and upgrades it to Korean Nida for a subtle sheen and softer drape, then finishes it with a wide butterfly sleeve that reads as more premium both on the hanger and in product photography. When a buyer is ready to introduce a second, higher price-tier abaya alongside a volume entry style, this is what we recommend.

Widad Kimono Abaya

Open kimono-style abaya designed to layer over daywear.

NEW ARRIVAL | PRIVATE LABEL READY

Open kimono abaya on a model

Lightweight abaya fabric drape

Cut fully open with no closure, Widad is meant to be worn as a layering piece over a base abaya or daywear. The lighter Zoom fabric keeps it breathable enough for warm-climate daily use, and it's become a strong reorder category for buyers whose customers want a modest outer layer without full abaya coverage.

Nailah Closed Abaya

Pull-over closed abaya with a fitted yoke and A-line skirt.

PRIVATE LABEL READY

Closed abaya on a mannequin

Abaya yoke seam detail

Nailah is our closed-front alternative to the Layla — pulled on over the head, with a fitted shoulder yoke that tapers into a fuller A-line skirt. Removing closure hardware entirely is a deliberate choice here, and some distributors prefer it for cost and durability reasons on high-volume basics programs.

Farida Linen Abaya

Resort-weight linen-blend abaya for warm-climate daywear.

PRIVATE LABEL READY

Linen-blend abaya on a mannequin

Linen texture close-up

Built on a reduced-crease linen-cotton blend, Farida was developed for resort and warm-climate daywear ranges where breathability matters more than the structured hand-feel of Nida. It carries linen's characteristic texture without the extreme creasing that makes pure linen impractical for travel retail.

Bridal Abayas

Occasion-grade abayas with embroidery, pearl, stone, and crystal embellishment on silk and satin bases, made for wedding, nikah, and bridal party ranges.

Bridal abaya is the most heavily embellished, highest-margin tier in our abaya range, and it's also where fabric weight matters more than anywhere else. Every stone, pearl, or crystal adds real weight to the garment, and a base fabric that can't hold that weight will sag or pucker right where the embellishment sits. That's why we only build this range on heavier crepe, satin, and silk bases, never on the lighter fabrics we'd use for everyday abayas.

Buyers generally use this category alongside their standard abaya range, to cover boutique, bridal party, and gifting channels — lower volume, better margin. Small-batch production is standard, most styles are available from 25 pieces per pattern per colour, and if you're building a signature bridal line, custom embroidery motifs, stone placement, and color-matched threadwork are all on the table for private label.

BRIDAL STYLE 01

Bridal Embroidered Abaya

Hand or machine thread embroidery in a custom motif on a heavier crepe or satin base.

Model wearing a bridal embroidered abaya with a custom thread motif

Close-up of hand embroidery detail on a bridal abaya

Bridal embroidered abayas carry a thread-embroidered motif across the bodice, sleeves, or hem — a buyer's own pattern, or one we develop in-house from a reference image. We deliberately use a heavier crepe or satin base here, since it holds the embroidery's tension without puckering around the stitched area, which is the defect most buyers tell us they've run into with lower-cost embroidered competitors. This style tends to get ordered as a fully custom, one-off design for a specific wedding party rather than as a repeat catalog SKU. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Pearl Bridal Abaya

Hand-sewn pearl trim or scattered pearl field across the bodice and sleeves.

Model wearing a pearl-embellished bridal abaya

Pearl bridal abayas use hand-sewn faux-pearl beading, either as a trim line along the seams and hems or scattered across the bodice, with each bead secured individually so it doesn't shed with handling. It's our most-ordered bridal abaya finish, mainly because it reads as elevated without the weight or cost of full crystal or stone coverage across the whole garment. Bead density and placement pattern can be fully customized per design. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Stone-Work Bridal Abaya

Mixed stone, bead, and sequin embellishment concentrated at the bodice and cuffs.

Model wearing a bridal abaya with concentrated stone-work at the bodice

Close-up of mixed stone and bead embellishment on bridal abaya fabric

Stone-work bridal abayas combine cut-glass stones, beads, and sequins into one mixed-media design, usually concentrated at the bodice, collar, and cuffs rather than spread evenly across the whole garment, since that's where it catches the most light and attention. Keeping the placement concentrated also keeps the added weight manageable on a full-length garment compared to all-over coverage. Our design team tends to recommend this when a buyer wants a statement front panel without paying to embellish the entire abaya. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Crystal Bridal Abaya

Faceted crystal embellishment for maximum sparkle under reception and event lighting.

Model wearing a crystal-embellished bridal abaya catching the light

Close-up of hand-set faceted crystals on bridal abaya fabric

Crystal bridal abayas use faceted glass or acrylic crystals in a hot-fix or hand-stitched application, chosen specifically for how they catch light under event and reception lighting. Coverage can range from an accent trim at the neckline and cuffs up to a fully crystal-covered bodice, priced accordingly. Given the added weight, we build this style exclusively on our heaviest crepe and satin bases, so it holds its structure without drooping. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Lace Bridal Abaya

Lace overlay panels or lace sleeve inserts for a softer, layered bridal finish.

Model wearing a bridal abaya with lace overlay sleeve inserts

Close-up of lace overlay panel on a bridal abaya

Lace bridal abayas use sheer lace overlay panels or lace sleeve inserts against a solid base fabric, giving a softer, more layered finish than our fully embellished crystal or stone styles. We pre-wash the lace and finish it flat against the base to prevent a shrinkage mismatch, which otherwise shows up as visible puckering along the seam line. Most bridal party buyers order this for the wider wedding party and save something more heavily embellished for the bride. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Satin Bridal Abaya

High-sheen satin base for a fluid, photograph-ready drape under embellishment weight.

Model wearing a satin bridal abaya with a fluid, photograph-ready drape

Close-up of glossy satin fabric used as a bridal abaya base

Satin bridal abayas use our high-sheen satin weave as a base, specifically because its weighted drape holds embellishment in place through a full ceremony and reception without shifting. The glossy finish reflects light well under both daylight and flash, and that matters more for bridal wear than almost any other category we make. Offered plain or as a base for any of our pearl, stone, or crystal finishes. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Luxury Silk Bridal Abaya

Genuine mulberry silk base for the highest bridal abaya tier, hand-finished throughout.

Model wearing a luxury silk bridal abaya with a hand-finished hem

Close-up of silk bridal abaya fabric showing its natural sheen

Luxury silk bridal abayas run on genuine mulberry silk instead of a satin substitute, and get hand-finished at the hem and seams by a specialist team rather than machine-processed the way our standard lines are. This is our top bridal abaya tier, built for boutique and department-store-adjacent placement rather than volume distribution. The natural fiber's sheen and weight give it a drape and movement that photographs distinctly from satin or crepe alternatives. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Cape-Style Bridal Abaya

Detachable or built-in cape layer over a fitted or flowing base abaya.

Model wearing a cape-style bridal abaya with a detachable shoulder layer

Close-up of cape-style bridal abaya construction and attachment point

Cape-style bridal abayas add a detachable or built-in cape layer over the shoulders — a construction we borrowed from bridal gown design and adapted to abaya proportions. The cape comes off for the reception after being worn through the ceremony, so one garment covers two distinct looks across a single event. Our boutique accounts tell us this is the strongest differentiator against standard embellished abayas, since here the silhouette itself is the statement, not just the embellishment. Trail / Gown-Style Bridal Abaya

Extended back trail on a gown-adjacent silhouette for maximum bridal drama.

Model wearing a gown-style bridal abaya with an extended back trail

Close-up of trail-style bridal abaya hem and fabric fall

Trail and gown-style bridal abayas extend the back hem into a trailing panel, borrowing the silhouette of a bridal gown train while keeping full modest coverage through the body and sleeves. It's our most fabric-intensive bridal style, and given the specialized cutting and finishing the extended hem requires, it's usually ordered as a single custom piece for the bride rather than across a wedding party. It pairs naturally with a veil-style bridal hijab for a complete matched look. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

White Bridal Abaya

Pure white base fabric positioned for Western-influenced and civil ceremony bridal wear.

Model wearing a pure white bridal abaya

Close-up of pure white bridal abaya fabric and finish

White bridal abayas run on a pure white base rather than our warmer ivory or champagne tones, aimed at buyers whose customers want a Western-bridal-adjacent white look for a civil ceremony or reception, rather than the traditional ivory associated with regional bridal wear. Getting a true, consistent white at scale takes tighter dye-lot control than our standard color range does, since white shows any batch-to-batch shade variation far more visibly than darker colors do. Available plain or as a base for any embellishment finish in this category. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.

Champagne Bridal Abaya

Warm champagne base tone, the most-requested neutral for regional bridal and nikah wear.

Model wearing a champagne-toned bridal abaya

Close-up of champagne bridal abaya fabric showing its warm tone

Champagne bridal abayas run on a warm, muted gold-beige base — consistently the most-requested neutral across our regional bridal accounts, since it photographs warmer than white and softer than gold under most venue lighting. It's also a versatile base for embellishment: pearl, gold-thread, and crystal accents all read cleanly against it without competing for attention the way they can against pure white. We check shade consistency across a production run against a fixed Pantone reference rather than eyeballing it, since small variations show up easily in this tone family. Gold Embellished Bridal Abaya

Gold-thread embroidery or gold-tone stonework on a dark base for maximum contrast.

Model wearing a gold-embellished bridal abaya on a dark base

Close-up of gold-thread embroidery and stonework on bridal abaya fabric

Gold embellished bridal abayas pair gold-thread embroidery or gold-tone stonework against a dark base fabric — usually black, navy, or charcoal — for maximum contrast between the embellishment and the garment, rather than the tonal, monochrome look you get from pearl-on-ivory styles. Buyers serving Gulf regional markets request this one most, since gold embellishment on a dark abaya is a well-established bridal and formal-occasion convention there. We check the gold-thread color against a fixed reference to avoid the greenish cast cheaper metallic thread can develop after washing. Produced from 25 pieces per pattern per colour.
